M.S. in Conflict Analysis and Resolution

The M.S. program develops reflective professionals in the practice, design, and evaluation of a variety of conflict resolution applications. It focuses on pragmatic approaches to solving problems inherent to human relationships. The study of conflict analysis and resolution exposes students to a wide array of techniques and strategies to help people achieve nonviolent, non-litigious solutions for conflicts that arise in many personal, professional, and social environments.

Students with a variety of educational and professional backgrounds are encouraged to apply. The program is offered at the main campus in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, or online.

The Master of Science in Conflict Analysis and Resolution degree program applies an interdisciplinary curriculum to the study of conflict and peacemaking. The program sequence includes conflict resolution theory, practice skills, field placement, research design, substance, and program evaluation. It balances five key areas: theory, methods, practice, research, and specializations.

Concentrations (6 additional credits):

- Conflict and Crisis Management
- Culture and Ethnic Conflict
- International Peace and Conflict
- Organization and School Conflict

Program Lengths

Students may enroll full or part time, taking six to nine credit hours per trimester. Students who attend full time can expect to complete the program in 18 months. These flexible formats allow working professionals and those unable to attend the on-campus program to study conflict resolution in a creative, rigorous, and structured fashion.

Curriculum—39 credit hours

- Foundations and Development of Conflict Resolution
- Human Factors
- Culture and Conflict
- Theories and Philosophies of Conflict and Peace
